Graham Fenton is an attorney in Greenberg Glusker’s Entertainment practice group where he represents both up-and-coming and established actors, writers, directors, producers, and social media influencers, as well as entertainment production companies.

Graham previously worked in Greenberg Glusker’s Corporate Group where he represented entertainment and technology companies in M&A transactions and negotiated celebrity endorsement deals on behalf of prominent consumer products brands.

Graham brings a unique perspective to his entertainment legal practice having spent years as a professional singer and actor, most notably starring as Frankie Valli in the hit Broadway musical, Jersey Boys. For over nine years, Graham performed the starring role in more than 1,300 performances as a member of the Las Vegas, Broadway, U.S. National Tour, and Australian casts. With this background, Graham especially understands the challenges facing talent in today’s entertainment business.

Following his acting career, Graham earned his law degree from the UCLA School of Law with a specialization in media, entertainment and technology law and policy, where he was fortunate to study under several entertainment legal legends. Graham was honored by the Recording Academy for his insights into live event ticket scalping as part of the 2020 GRAMMY Week for his paper, Taming the Ticket Market: How a Closed Ticketing System Can Beat Back Scalpers and Recapture Lost Revenue.
